Residential mobility of sociology graduates:
Analysis of a survey of alumni of School of Sociology at Kwansei Gakuin University (7)

Tsutomu WATANABE

ABSTRACT

The purpose of this paper is to describe the characteristics of residential mobility of alumni of the Faculty of Sociology at Kwansei Gakuin University. The results show the following: (1) When young, many graduates move to another place, but when they are older, few move. (2) Many graduates live in the Kansai region, and do not move to other places except in the Kansai region. (3) Through marriage or change of occupation, many graduates change their place of residence. (4) Those who work for a large company change their place of residence more easily than those who work for a small company.

Key Words: residential mobility, life history, discrete-time logit model