Advice from Graduates:
Analysis of a Survey of Alumni of the School of Sociology (6)

Yasuto NAKANO

ABSTRACT

This study describes how alumni of the school of sociology give advice to faculty and students. Most of the advice pertains to “education and learning,” “experience,” or “employment.” Young alumni are not very familiar with educational advice, but they are very familiar with employment advice. These results may reflect a shift of educational stage (i.e., elite-mass-universal).

Key Words: survey of alumni, higher education, text analysis
